once.

The Squire's Sweetheart

BY KATHARINE TYNAN

WARD, LOCK & CO., LIMITED
London, Melbourne, and Toronto

Hilary began to understand. The man had suffered. There was pride in the way he bore himself, pride and sensitiveness, in the poise of his head, in his eyes, on his lips, stern and yet gentle. He had had to snare and hide because only so could he save the beloved woman who needed his help. And Lady South's old friends and neighbors had lain down and risen up, had eaten and drunk, and talked and walked and slept, while she and her young daughter were at the mercy of their tyrant.

"We never knew how bad things were," the boy said, in abject apology. "If we had known, the Squire or myself, or the parson or any other body, we, they would have interfered."

Suddenly he put out his hand. The other man sat in the light of a street lamp they were warmly, and took it, pressing it warmly.

"Of course you did not know," he said. "Margaret would not tell. Her shoulders still bear the marks of her father's brutality. Poor child!"

"If he were not so old!" said Hilary passionately.

"It is not for us to punish him," Mr. Langton said sternly. "Not for you and not for me."

There was a significance in his manner of saying it that made Hilary wonder.

He looked out of the window. They were in an unfamiliar part of London, a region of ugly small houses, some half-built, intersected by streets where were full of people going to and fro, lit by flaming shop-fronts and the naphtha or torches of the costers' barrows, a noise and a hurly-burly from the shouting of the costers. Some sort of street market was evidently in progress. It was curious after crossing the fit thoroughfare carefully to plunge again into the narrow streets with hardly a sign of life in them.

"Your chauffeur must know his London, well," Hilary said. "I have completely lost my bearings. And all these places seem so very much alike."

"He is used to it," Mr. Langton said.

Presently they had left the mean streets and the mean rows of half-built houses behind and they were in suburbs, running along wider roads, gardens showing behind walls and palings, and now and again a glimpse of a field. At last the motor-car stopped at a door in a high wall. They alighted, and Mr. Langton opened the door and held it for Hilary.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Quinn's Experience Ought to Help You Over the Critical Period.

Lowell, Mass.—"For the last three years I have been troubled with the Change of Life and the bad feelings common at that time. I was in a very nervous condition, with headaches and pain a good deal of the time so it was unfit to do my work. A friend asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it has helped me in every way. I am not nearly so nervous, no headache or pain. I must say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best remedy any sick woman can take."

Mrs. MARY ANN QUINN, Rear 259 Worthen St., Lowell, Mass.

Other warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness, inquietude, and dizziness.

If you need special advice, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Confidential), Lynn, Mass.

ary to pass through. Within was a garden and a gabled house, which had lights showing in several windows.

The chauffeur followed them—in with a couple of bags, which he put down on the floor of the porch on which they were standing. Mr. Langton rang the bell. A woman in a nurse's uniform opened the door in response to the bell.

With the opening of the door there came out to meet them that smell of disinfectants and anaesthetics which is characteristic of a hospital; otherwise there was no suggestion of the purpose the house served. The hall beyond was painted in white and had white and blue washing rugs on the floor. There were pictures on the wall; a few good pieces of furniture, all very pleasant and clean-looking.

"This is the waiting room," the nurse said. "Mr. Langton said to the nurse."

"May I smoke in the garden?" Hilary asked. "I want to get away from the smell of disinfectants, from the clean white rooms, the woman all in white, with her expressionless face."

"Yes, do. It is a lovely night," he said.

"I will send Margaret to you."

Hilary went out into the garden. It was an old garden, although the house seemed new; there was a lawn in front of the house, and beyond it a kitchen garden, showing the low shapes of apple-trees in the moonlight. There were arches of roses over the paths; roses and hollyhocks over the porch gave out a delicious sweetness in the summer night. Away beyond the apple boughs there was a cloud with a lurid reflection upon it—London, a pillar of smoke by day, a pillar of fire by night. In the quietness here Hilary thought he could hear the distant noises and smouldering of the London streets.

He walked up and down, having lit his cigarette. Now and again he glanced up at the lighted windows, all of which were open behind the blinds. A shadow crossed one of them—a nurse's shadow, with a high cap. Plainly this was a nursing home of some sort.

He had time to grow impatient and somewhat nervous before Margaret joined him. She came round to the front of the house from the back, and was beside him before he was aware of her coming.

"Well, Hilary!" she said, and though there was an attempt at the old boyish cheerfulness in her voice, it was not very successful. "So you have run us to earth! I wonder you cared to see me. I was again; seeing you, only Mr. Langton persuaded me."

"My poor girl!" said Hilary, with a sudden pitying tenderness. "Not care to see you? How little you know!"

"You heard my mother," she said, with a gentleness and a timidity he had never known in her. Mr. Langton has told you? You understand now that it is the only way?"

"Oh yes! I was a fool, an ass, an idiot. He did what we ought to have done. Why did you not tell me, Margaret? Do you think your friends could have permitted it?"

"It would be going on still," Margaret said, with a catch in her voice. "If mother had not been so ill that I used to be afraid she would die in one of her dreadful attacks. You never saw angina pectoris, Hilary?"

"Thank God, you never saw it! It is terrible to look at, not being able to help. And now—there is this operation as well. Is it fair? It is just that she should suffer so much? She was always so sweet and so dainty in all her ways; so innocent and harmless. Oh, she has suffered!"

She covered her face with her hands. She had been speaking in a low voice, trembling with agitation. Now she seized Hilary's arm and drew him with her down the path under a pergola of roses. He went with her, wondering. Out of earshot of the house she turned and indicated a lit window.

"There she lies," she said in a passionate whisper. "I left her reading her 'Imitation of Christ.' Do you know that the quiet white room where she is resting before her operation is a kind of heaven to her because she is not afraid. Because she is cared for by someone else besides her daughter, for the first time since she married my father?"

"Was it so wretched?" Hilary asked in a whisper.

"Oh, it was wretched. I don't know how I grew up amid it all. It was all about me from my babyhood. My first impression of my father was of someone who was always to be run away from. I would not run—never, at any time. So he hated me. I was very glad he grew up strong and healthy, to take care of my mother. Otherwise—there hasn't been much joy in it. I used to forget when I got away from it. When I went back there was always my mother trembling and my father scowling. He begged me when I was quite little. I used to wish he would be thrown from his horse when he was out hunting, and be carried home dead."

"Oh, hush, hush, my darling!" cried poor Hilary. "I cannot endure it. I shall want to go and kill him. You poor sweet, little child!"

"You were angry with me the last time I saw you," she said simply. "It is so nice now that you are sorry for me and kind."

Hilary put his arms about her. Making tender little sounds of compassion he smoothed the heavy silken dark hair away from her forehead. Someone had said that Margaret South's hair had the color of a plum. The purple darkness was in strange contrast to the milky whiteness of her face and throat, with the moon shining upon them.

"Dear!" she said. "Dear!" in a quiet voice. "It is so nice that you care, Hilary."

She let him kiss her, between the eyes, on the lips, on her hair.

"I am so glad you care," she said again. "Dear Hilary I was so sorry to be angry with you. It is so nice to be friends again."

"Friends! Oh, much more than friends," he said, with an exultant laugh. "We are done with being friends. We are much more than that. I don't know when it came over me that I was in love with you. I took a long time to find out, my sweetheart, because we had known each other for so long. We were good comrades, always; but now, is not this better, Margaret?"

Before she could answer his low tones, someone whistled.

"It is Mr. Langton," she said, disengaging herself from his arms. "He wants me. Perhaps mother has asked for me."

They turned towards the house and met Mr. Langton coming to meet them.

Airplane Mail Carriers

Expect Aviators Will Not Abandon Air Work When the War Is Over

It is said that the French government is planning to convert its corps of army aviators, thousands upon thousands of them, into mail carriers after the war.

There are no technical difficulties in the way. Airplane engines have been perfected to the highest degree of reliability and their speed has been developed marvelously. Nothing short of thick fog, a violent thunderstorm or a hurricane bordering almost on a tornado now serves to prevent flying with rarely a casualty from natural causes.

Indeed, the greatest defect in the army aerial service, according to officials in that branch, is overconfidence in what the airplane engine can do. Flights of six and eight and ten hours without replenishing the gasoline supply are now of common occurrence. Mountains can be scaled as if they were mounds under the foot of a Beringian. Aviators leave the British side of the Channel and deposit passengers or messengers on the war front with no more sense of the unusual than if they had taken a steamer from Dover to Boulogne.

The possibilities of mail carrying in difficult regions have not been thoroughly investigated, because of the demands for war efficiency have brought flying up to the point of dependability needed for general service. The French government did establish some postal routes for airmen, but nothing on an extensive scale was adopted. Commercially, the utility of the airplane after the war will be open to the fullest exploitation. Britain will have scores of thousands of expert aviators and not many of these will abandon the "pop" which now is serving the British armies so splendidly.

Friends Worth Retaining

The Great Mistake of Making War On Birds

Birds are the friends of mankind. Were it not for their kindly offices, so ill requited, men could not live upon the earth more than a year or two. Insect life would sweep over the earth in a devastating flood; every green thing would disappear, as insects great and small, flying, creeping, swimming, boring and omnivorous, swept over the land. The birds, and the birds alone, are our guardians and keepers and yet we make senseless war upon them. Because a few birds that guard our peas and cherries take tribute of the fruit they preserve, we make senseless war upon them until by sad experience we are taught that it is a choice between plenty of birds and fewer cherries, and without the birds no cherries at all. The hawks and owls rid us of pestiferous vermin, and now and then take a chicken for tribute, therefore we make war upon hawks and owls, and by and by we have no clover, because the mice have eaten of the bumblebees and so the clover is not fertilized. Women—horrible thought!—that they may wear feathers in their hats, doom millions of beautiful and useful birds to extinction, then, as in Italy, a murrain sweeps the land.—Christian Register.

"Do your constituents endorse your attitude?"

"I don't know yet," replied Senator Sorghum. "Attitudes are not as easy as they used to be. I can remember the time when all I needed in the way of an attitude was an Ajax-defying lightning pose while I mentioned George Washington and the American eagle."

"I've often wondered why my wife accepted me."

"Didn't you tell me once that she had simple tastes?"

Note and Comment

Every person should make an effort to be in town when the Mixed Farming Special Train is here, on July the 10th.

Make a holiday of it and bring the children along.

Thousands of people have visited this train and everyone has been well repaid for the time spent. A special invitation is extended to the ladies.

We have not heard anything more, lately, about a Sports Day at Monitor, this year.

This subject was discussed early in the year, but seems to have died a natural death.

Altho the train service will be improved, the mail service will continue as it is at present with only a tri-weekly mail to and from the east. The mail car will only be operated between Coronation and Lacombe both ways. The daily trains will pass each other at Halkirk and make connections at Lacombe for Calgary and Edmonton.

Watch the Gray-Dort

Oh, she is good, the little rain and well she knows our need,
Who cometh in the time of Spring to aid the sun drawn seed;
She wanders with a friendly wind thro silent nights unseen;
The furrows feel her happy tears, and lo! the land is green.

Those who do so much thinking about the sacrifices we will have to make to win the war might better occupy their time in thinking of the sacrifices we will have to make if we don't win the war.

Appeal to the Creek
Valley Farmers

Dear Sir:

The Patriotic Fund
is in urgent need of more money, and I have been asked to make an appeal to all those in my district, who did not subscribe to our late sale.

I feel certain I have only to ask you, to consider the following points, to get a good response. You are living at home peacefully, in quietness and prosperity, you are getting nearly three times as much for your produce as you did before the war; and you know that in consequence of the war, you are certain of very high prices for many years to come.

In a nutshell, you are putting thousands of dollars a year more into your pockets than before.

What is the lot of the plucky claps who are fighting for you?

Many of them have thrown up good positions to go, others have left wives and children scantly provided for, scores had to undergo medical operations, with the attendant costs, before they could enlist, and plenty of your neighbors left their farms in charge of others and went to do their bit.

Out in the trenches they are undergoing terrible hardships, suffering tortures from horrible wounds, thousands are crippled for life and thousands more have died in battle to protect your liberties.

Can you sit in peace and enjoy all your unexpected prosperity, automobiles, back debts all paid, more land bought, balance in the bank, etc., etc.,
without doing something in return for the splendid sacrifices these men are making for you?

I earnestly hope it is only the pressure of spring work which has caused you to neglect your obvious duty so far, and that you will prove it by rolling up, with some good stout donations to the fund, at the earliest possible moment.

WHY Does Your Head Ache?

Headaches, sick or other kinds, don't happen to people whose livers are as regular as a clock.

Thousands of folks who used to have headaches say this is the way they removed the cause:

An Historic Speech

Unified Parliament of the Empire Not Favored

"The speech of General Smuts was one of the finest and most statesmanlike utterances the war has produced."

"If the British nation has not realized before fully, it assuredly will understand now, what a noble ornament and strong pillar of Empire it possesses in the soldier statesman who represented the Union of South Africa in the Imperial war conference."

"If we interpret Gen. Smuts' speech aright we detect in it a note of friendly and earnest caution to those who think the time ripe for framing a new constitution of empire with a new imperial parliament, a new imperial treasury and new imperial taxes. The idea is noble, imposing and logical, but it is none the less full of perils and quicksands and above all open to fatal objection that it does not seem to be described by the responsible spokesmen of the dominions. It may be taken as certain, therefore, that the special conference which is to be called at the end of the war to consider the problem of imperial reconstruction will not favor the idea of a unified parliament of the empire. It will proceed on lines less sensational, but far more consonant with the British tradition of gradual evolution. Indeed, it has already begun, in the last few weeks, in the admission to the imperial cabinet of statesmen of the dominions and representatives of India."—London Daily Telegraph.

Climate and Efficiency

Variable Climate Makes for Man's Highest Achievement

Recent investigations seem to show that civilization in the broader sense of the term is largely dependent on man's being subjected to considerable variations of temperature in his environment. Whenever white men in spite of their natural initiative and tendency to efficiency have to live and work in a tropical climate, they degenerate physically, mentally and morally. This, it is claimed, is due not so much to the high temperature as to the monotony of an unvarying climate and the consequent lack of Nature's most effective stimulation.

It has long been recognized that man's highest achievements have been made in the variable climate of the north temperate zone. Indeed, if the 40th parallel of north latitude be traced around the globe, it will be found that practically all the great centres of human achievement were situated not far away from it. Athens, Constantinople, Naples, Rome, Florence, Paris, Vienna, Berlin, London, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Tokio, and Peking, as well as Jerusalem, Carthage, Sidon, Tyre, Memphis and Babylon, were all situated within about 10 degrees of this magic line.

Almost needless to say, this is the line of greatest variation in temperature. It would seem, then, as though the centres of human achievement, efficiency under circumstances, in which he is subjected to considerable daily, monthly and yearly variations of temperature must be accepted.

"If all the wealth in the country were equally divided, what would you get?"

"Foolish and a car."

WHY MR. AND MRS. WEST RECOMMEND DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

They Cured Mr. West's Lumbago and Made Mrs. West Feel Like a New Person. They Are the Best Tonic.

St. James, Man. (Special).—That Dodd's Kidney Pills are living up to their great reputation in the West is twice proved by Mr. and Mrs. G. West, well known and highly respected residents of this place. Let Mr. West tell the story of what the great Canadian kidney remedy has done for her husband and herself.

"My husband suffered from attacks of lumbago," she states, "and the doctor did him no good, but I can truthfully say that since using Dodd's Kidney Pills he is entirely free from lumbago."

"I myself took six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am just like a new person. I have gained 10 lbs. since using them and my friends compliment me on how well I look. I have recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to some of my lady friends who were complaining of not feeling well, and they, like myself, speak highly of them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidney and the kidneys make pure blood. That is why Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best tonic.

The Length of Revolutions

Russian Upheaval Was One of the Quickest on Record

For its size and significance, the Russian revolution is one of the quickest and least sanguinary on record. Six days practically saw the end of it, whereas more than three years elapsed between the storming of the Bastille and the proclamation of the French republic. It took six days of barricade fighting in 1830 to persuade Charles X. to abdicate; but Louis Philippe fled in 1848 after only two, though the subsequent state of siege lasted four months.

England was ten years in establishing a commonwealth, and five weeks sufficed to convince James II. that French soil was healthier for him than English. Italian wars of liberation occupied most of 1860; and the insurrection in which the Greeks deposed King Otto in 1862 was over in fourteen days. The quickest revolution on record was that of Portugal in 1910, which was over in a day.—London Observer.

HEALTHY CHILDREN

It is natural for little ones to be well; and with care every baby can be kept well. The main thing towards keeping little ones well is to keep their little stomachs sweet and their bowels regular. Baby's Own Tablets will do this. Thousands of mothers keep the Tablets in the house as they find them an efficient guard against illness. Concerning them Mrs. Hilarie Desmarais, St. Joseph de Sorel, Que., writes: "I believe Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine in the world for children. My baby was terribly constipated, but the Tablets promptly cured him and now he is a big healthy child." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Loss of British Guns

No more remarkable assurance of the superiority of the British over their German enemy could have been given than is contained in the statement of Premier Lloyd George, that up to June, 1915, two years ago, British armies had lost 84 guns, and that since that time they have not lost a gun, but instead have captured over 400 guns. Furthermore, that German prisoners taken by the British number ten to one British prisoner taken by the Germans.—London Free Press.

An Atlanta lawyer tells of a newly qualified judge in one of the towns of the south who was trying one of his first criminal cases. The prisoner was an old negro charged with robbing a hen coop. He had been in court before on a similar charge and was then acquitted.

"Well, Henry," observed the judge, "I see you're in trouble again."

"I 'yesah," replied the negro, "the last time, Judge, you will recollect, you was my lawyer."

"Where is your lawyer this time?"

"I ain't got no lawyer this time."

The First Aviators

The origin of the first balloon, the greatly marvelled at experiment of Montgolfier in 1783, is to be traced indirectly to the influence of a not very pretty feminine fashion. Montgolfier was led to his discovery by the inflation and upward flight of his wife's hooped petticoat, which happened to be near his gas retort while he was making some experiments. The Montgolfier brothers wisely did not risk their own necks in the first flight. The first aviators were a cock, a duck, and a sheep, who all returned safe and sound to terra firma.

Italy's Navy Grows Spuds

At Venice Seamen Have Excess Crop for Sale to Civilians

The Italian ministry for marine has ordered all available plots of ground within naval enclosures to be cultivated for the raising of vegetables for consumption by the navy. Land is scarce in Venice, yet the sailors there have done so well that this year's potato crop will exceed the needs of the navy and the excess will be sold at a low price to the civilian population.

Useful in Camp.—Explorers, surveyors, prospectors and hunters will find Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil very useful in camp. ## Germany Strengthens Doctrine

It is one of the remarkable features of the war that the ruthless acts of Germany have done more than anything else to strengthen the Monroe Doctrine. Germany is the one power above all others that has been antagonistic to that doctrine. She has watchfully waited her opportunity to descend upon the western hemisphere and secure a permanent foothold here. And now by the logical development of her consciousness of policy of aggression she finds South America, on which she had set her heart, arrayed against her and bound to us by closer ties of sentiment and interest than ever before. Thus she has been her own undoing again.—Providence Journal.

ONTARIO BABY MADE STRONG

Mrs. Jarvis says Dr. Cassell's Tablets cured her Delicate Child when nothing else could

Mrs. Jarvis, Box 286, Penstang, P. O., Ontario, writes: "It is a pleasure to tell you what Dr. Cassell's Tablets have done for my baby. When only five months old he fell ill, and though I had medical advice for him he got worse. I tried several special foods, but none of them would stay on his stomach, and he became so thin that he seemed just skin and bone. He only weighed 10 lbs., and we never thought he could live. But when I heard of Dr. Cassell's Tablets I got some for my baby, and sure enough, he did. He is a healthy boy now, quite plump, and weighs 25 lbs. at twelve months old."

PAIN? NOT A BIT!

LIFT YOUR CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

No humbug! Apply few drops then just lift them away with fingers.

This new drug is an ether compound discovered by a Cincinnati chemist. It is called freezone, and can now be obtained in tiny bottles as here shown at very little cost from any drug store. Just ask for freezone. Apply a drop or two directly upon a tender corn or callus and instantly the soreness disappears. Shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off, root and all, with the fingers.

Not a twinge of pain, soreness or irritation; not even the slightest smarting, either when applying freezone or afterwards. This drug doesn't eat up the corn or callus, but shrivels them so they loosen and come right out. It is no humbug! It works like a charm. For a few cents you can get rid of every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of your feet. It never disappoints and never burns, bites or inflames. If your druggist hasn't any freezone yet, tell him to get a little bottle for you from his wholesale house.

Zouaves of France

Although the Zouaves, who covered themselves with glory in the Saloniki campaign, have been a component part of the French army for less than ninety years, they have traditions which older regiments may envy. In the Algerian war the French recruited them from some fierce Arab tribes known by the many-vowelled name "Zouaous," and their achievements under Lamoriciere and Cavaignac soon attracted enthusiastic young Frenchmen to their ranks. They adopted the Moorish uniform, fought with distinction in the Crimea and the regiment became a close corporation for their compatriots, all of African birth being refused admission.

PERFECT HEALTH DUE TO THE BLOOD

No Girl or Woman Need be Constantly Ailing and Unhappy

Nature intended every girl and every woman to be happy, attractive, active and healthy. Yet too many of them find their lives saddened by suffering—nearly always because their blood is to blame. All those unhappy girls and women with colored cheeks, dull skins and sunken, lusterless eyes, are in this condition because they have not enough blood, red blood in their veins to keep them well and in the charm of health. They suffer from depressing weariness and periodical headaches. Dark lines form under their eyes, their heart palpitates violently after the slightest exertion, and they are often attacked with fainting spells. These are only a few of the miseries of bloodlessness. Nothing can secure girls and women from the inevitable decline that follows anaemia except generous supply of new, rich, red blood, and nothing has ever proved so successful in creating red, good blood as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Thousands and thousands of girls and women owe their good health and charming complexion to the use of this medicine. Here is one example of its power to cure. Miss Dorine Brien, St. Jerome, Que. says: "For over a year my health was gradually failing, my blood had seemed almost to have turned to water, my cheeks were pale, my lips bloodless, and the slightest exertion left me breathless. I suffered frequently from severe headache and appetite failed, and my friends feared I was going into consumption. I had been doctoring but did not derive any benefit, and finally I had to give up my work and return home. It was at this stage that a friend brought me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and urged me to try them. By the time the box was used I thought they were helping me, and decided to continue using the pills. I took a half dozen boxes more, when my strength had completely returned, my appetite was restored, my color returned, headaches had disappeared and I was feeling better than I had been for years. I would urge every weak and ailing girl to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Inconsiderate Spouse Sick folks are often extremely querulous. A man was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism and his sufferings frequently caused his wife to burst into tears as she sat at his bedside.

One day a friend of this invalid came in and asked how he was getting on.

"Badly, badly!" he exclaimed, "and it's all my wife's fault."

"Is it possible?" asked the friend in surprise.

"Yes. The doctor told me that his mildity was bad for me, and there that woman sits and cries just to make it more moist in the room."

Lava Takes Years to Cool

Has Been Known to Retain Heat for a Period of Over Forty Years

Peasants on the slopes of Mount Etna can still boil water over the lava that flowed from the volcano during the eruption of 1910. Lava, according to Walter Woodburn Hyde of the University of Pennsylvania, writing to the Geographical Review, often reaches a temperature of 2,000 degrees F.

Even the ancient poets recorded the tenacity with which lava retains the heat, and Borelli, describing the great eruption of 1669, says the lava took eight years to cool. It is related that steam was still rising in 1830 from lava ejected in 1787. And this is not astonishing when we remember that the stream of molten lava which reached the sea at Catania on that occasion was at least 600 yards in breadth, 45 feet deep and contained 3,532,000,000 cubic feet. It banked up against the walls of Catania, which were 60 feet high until it flowed over the top and destroyed a large part of the city. The huge promontory that acts like a breakwater to the harbor is the remains of that stream of lava that flowed into the sea.

Danger in the Well

Of all the different wells to be feared the dug well is probably the most dangerous. It is usually walled up with loose stones, leaving numerous cracks and crevices. In these openings many small animals such as frogs, lizards, snakes and mice make their homes. These animals frequently die, drop into the water and decay, thus making the water extremely unpleasant as well as unsafe for use. Aside from this point the dug well is open to another criticism. It is usually on a level with the surrounding area and during heavy rains is quite apt to receive the drainage and wash from surrounding barnyards and pens as well as from privies.

"Three Days in a Submarine"

A provincial church, at which the congregation has been growing larger and less every Sunday for some time, was recently crowded long before the time for commencement of the service. The minister was evidently adopting the government's idea that sermons should be more practical and topical in these days, for the subject announced, which had attracted such wonderful numbers was "Three Days in a Submarine." The expectant congregation were treated to a wonderful discourse, but came away sadder and wiser men after hearing a sermon on Jonah.—London Daily Chronicle.

Miller's Worm Powders are a pleasant medicine for worm-infested children and they will take it without objection. When directions are followed it will insure the most delicate child, as there is nothing of an injurious nature in its composition. They will speedily rid a child of worms and restore the health of the little sufferers whose vitality has become impaired by the attacks of these internal pests.

Abstinence Is Good Medicine

Ninety per cent. of the English well-to-do classes habitually overeat. If their daily rations were cut down to a third of the food regularly consumed before the war there would be less disease, better work, and far clearer thinking. Six months of a restricted diet would enormously add to the nation's brain power and effectiveness. The increase in health and happiness would be so great that there would be no general tendency to gorge again when peace returns. The Kaiser has already forced Great Britain to be efficient. He may yet succeed in compelling her to be abstemious and healthy.—London Daily Express.

Recognized as the leading specific for the destruction of worms, Mother Graves' Worm Extremator has proved a boon to suffering children everywhere. It seldom fails.

"You must enjoy hearing your prima donna sing."

"I do," replied the impresario. "You don't know what a relief it is to have her get out and throw those high notes around to the audience, instead of yelling at me about her salary."

Angels Admiring Zeppelin

German Humorist Gives Dead Count a Front Window in Heaven

The Bavarian humorous paper Simplicissimus features on its front page a picture of "Count Zeppelin in Heaven." The count has flown up to heaven in one of his own cruisers, which is seen resting on a cloud bank in the background, undergoing the inspection of a crowd of admiring angels. Count Zeppelin, attended by a committee of cherubs, is being welcomed by St. Peter, who makes him a laudatory address, informing him that he has been given one of the finest locations. A feature of the new residence, remarks St. Peter, is that "you can see Germany from the front window."

Pills for Nervous Trouble.—The stomach is the centre of the nervous system, and when the stomach suffers healthy action the result is manifest in disturbances of the nerves. If allowed to persist, nervous debility, a dangerous ailment, may ensue. The first consideration is to restore the stomach to proper action, and there is no readier remedy for this than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Thousands can attest the virtue of these pills in curing nervous disorders.

Value of Good Roads to the Farmer.—Poor roads are very expensive things for country communities. The farmer who thinks that improved highways are mainly for the benefit of those who drive automobiles should reflect on the results of a recent investigation by the department of Agriculture, which finds that the cost of hauling farm produce over ordinary country roads is twenty-three cents a ton mile whereas over hard-surfaced roads it is only thirteen cents.—Youth's Companion.

A shrinkage of 3,000,000 tons in the garbage collections in a month shows that even the extravagant city of New York can practice economy when it sets out to do so. # RUSSIA ALL STANF AGAINST AN DISHONORABLE PEACE MOVE

DECLARES INDISSOLUBLE UNION WITH THE ALLIES

Russian Premier Speaks of the Future Policy of the Empire, Stating that Russia Cannot Hand Down to Future Generations A Dishonored Name

Prince Lvoff, the Russian premier, and M. Tereschenko, the newly appointed minister, made long statements at a press reception on the recent crisis and the policy of Russia.

Prince Lvoff, after declaring that the nation had been brought to the edge of an abyss said:

"The government considers that its first duty is to consolidate the fighting strength of the army, as well as for safeguarding the conquests of restitution and for driving out the enemy and actively supporting the allies. The government considers that it is its duty to proclaim clearly and definitely its desire for the consolidation of a speedy peace; but, in speaking of peace without annexation or indemnities, the government declares it is not a question of passive defence. Free Russia will not consent to leave under the yoke of German militarism territories which were abandoned owing to the criminal negligence of the old regime. Neither can Russia remain indifferent to the fate of Belgium, Serbia, or Rumania, nor forget its duties toward them. Russia cannot hand down to future generations a dishonored reputation.

"The existing armistice at the front which gave the German chancellor a pretext to formulate his idea of a separate peace, dishonorable to Russia, must cease. The country must speak its imperious word, and send its army out to fight."

M. Tereschenko in his statement of the policy of free Russia as outlined in the declaration of the provisional government, strongly emphasized the need of an indissoluble union with the allied democracies and the consciousness of the duty those ties impose upon Russia. He declared that it was a question of the honor of the revolution which was more precious to Russia than ever.

"I note with deep satisfaction," continued the minister, "that in our free Russia, despite our divergencies of view, there is no party, no single organization such as existed in reactionary Russia, capable of carrying on propaganda in the name of peace. There is one question, however, which still lets loose the passions, namely, the question of the treaties concluded by the old regime. The immediate publication of which is demanded. This, I am convinced, is a mistaken demand.

"The Russian democracy must understand that the publication of these treaties would mean a rupture with the allies and the isolation of Russia, which would be the beginning of a separate peace. The Russian people, who the entire Russian people repudiates with all its strength. It understands that an international war can only be conducted by the international peace. New Russia must look forward, not behind.

"There are two great new facts in the war—the Russian revolution and the entry of the United States into the United States. A new start must be made from these facts, and free Russia must prove that she is loyally fulfilling the engagements entered upon with the allies for a united struggle and mutual help. The army will understand that it is fighting for all it holds most dear, and that the text will annihilate our new found liberty and new life.

"It is indeed ridiculous to speak at the present time of the annihilation of the plans of the allies as a great menace to a just peace, when Russia, Belgium, France and Serbia are themselves either entirely or partially occupied by the enemy."

The war minister, A. F. Kerensky, addressing a meeting of Black Sea delegates, said:

"So long as I am minister of war no attempt at a counter revolution is possible. Our new regime has for its soul complete union with the allies."

Is Scotland Going "Dry"?

The demand for war time prohibition in Scotland is undoubtedly making progress. Sir Edward Parrott, president of a large gathering of Edinburgh citizens in the Usher Hall of that city, and commented that its size and representation indicated that the thinking part of the community had been converted to the cause.

The speeches that followed hammered the demand for prohibition of the drinking of alcohol. The country and Europe stood at the parting of the ways, and if Scotland which would lose more than any other country, went "dry" other countries would be sure to follow the lead.

The torch of a "dry" Scotland is to be carried north, south, east and west.

Tribute to Canada

American Paper Praises Spirit of the Canadian Troops

When the history of the war comes to be told, Canada's place in it will stand forth to our wonder and amazement. Canada's contribution in men and money, in bravery and endurance, in unselfish resourcefulness, in quick and adequate response, has been tremendous in magnitude. Proportionately to her population, Canada will be found to have made the largest monetary contributions to the war, not only for the formation and equipment of her own vast armies, not only in subscriptions to the ever-recurring war loans, but also in aid to the multitudinous relief funds for Belgium, for France, for Serbia and for Poland for the widows and orphans and dependents of soldiers in the war, for the provision of luxuries for the troops, for the relief of the starving and the stalwart application of those who remained at home for the production of foodstuffs for the warring countries.

The valor of the Canadians on the field has called forth the unqualified praise of the French and British generals, for they have given courage and the stalwart application of those who remained at home for the production of foodstuffs for the warring countries.

It was the Canadians that bore the terrible brunt of the abysmal gas attacks, which came as such a staggering surprise, the Hague Convention having specifically forbidden their use. The stories of the appalling condition of those who lived through it, is heart-rending. But the experience did not deter the Canadians and their determination to increase their aid in men and money to fight the common enemy. No wonder the thousand Chinese who have volunteered to fight with the allies, enlisting from Vancouver, expressed the wish to serve under Canadian officers.

Canada, a young country, needing all her men at home, never hesitated once they had put their shoulder to the wheel. And they have never shied from the most arduous and self-sacrificing work. And the women of Canada have taken up the men's work at home, kept the country going at a normal business rate, and it has been cultivated in Canada since the war started—cultivated by the men and women of Canada. It is a splendid record which will place Canada among the historic nations of the world.—Los Angeles Times

Scientific Burglary

Dean Inge Says Teutons Are Not a Fighting Race

Speaking at the Temple church, London, Dean Inge said our opponents in this war were not really a fighting race, and so his was a scientific burglary by a very large gang.

He seemed to claim that reliance on the law of progress, on socialism, democracy, common-sense and industry, or on organized religion, to prevent a recurrence of war, was like trying to stop a flood by building a dam of mud.

He knew that this war was forced upon us, but he did not think we had a right to assume that we and our present allies could never be guilty of breaking the peace in the future. He said that the world was not clean enough for that. It was of no use trying to change the world without changing ourselves. We must promote good to the bottom of the great reforms in national education which he hoped would come after peace.

Cannot Invoke a "Hate" Sentiment

Professor Shipley, of Christ's College, Cambridge, England, in an essay on "Hate" said that he doesn't think the sentiment of hatred as an incentive to war can be effectively worked up with British troops. In an officer recently visited one of the British trenches where some German prisoners were and at an hour he was pleased to hear the sergeant in the chain announce "Item No. 4, Mister Fritz and Mister Moritz, who now oblige with 'The yun of ate.'"

SEESESS DESTRUCTIVE WREATH IN TRAIL OF RETREATING VANDALS

BOCHE WAR A BEAST'S GAME WITH BESTIAL RULES

An Eye-Witness Tells of the Work of the Retreating Germans in Fair France, Committing Acts of Vandalism That Would Put To Shame a Band of Ruthless Savages

An eye-witness of the fiendish and senseless destruction wrought by the German armies in their present flight homewards conveys what is clearly a true and impartial account of what is taking place.

I saw them, from a point within reach of the pellets of the very last shells fired at Baginne, have traversed many blasted villages and have spent almost leisurely hours in Peronne—fondly called the French La Pucelle—which has lost under German treatment even the touch of its maidenly grace and beauty. With such opportunities it is not difficult to tell how much of the ruin has been wrought by shell fire, but much by mine or fire or army house-breakers. Calculated brutality, scientific extermination, cannot cloak themselves under the guise of destruction.

The facts are these: As soon as the inhabitants were driven off and sent behind this great fortified line, the things to be destroyed. In Peronne are many fine trees planted for ornament. The military authorities, probably from lack of labor, could not cut the trees down, not even spend time in felling them.

So instructions were given to hack every tree, as a hedge-layer cuts hedge-stakes, just deep enough to ensure the death of the tree. So the German left "his mark," a V-shaped convict's mark, cut half-way through each trunk of the avenue. Fruit trees are more carefully reserved than ornamental trees, and special care has been taken to destroy completely the espaliers and prettily trained fruit trees in every French gardeners take special and peculiar delight.

I do not know why, but the sight of these little fruit trees with their shoots cut, filled me with more trenchant rage against the German mind than all the rest of the havoc. Probably a list of trees and other things that should be destroyed was sent to the military authorities. Now for the houses. I do not know how many score I entered, how many hundred I started into through the ruins of one of which was whored streets where every front wall was rent open, I could find no vestige of any shell hole or of the distinctive oval hole that a shell usually punctures in brickwork.

The work had been done. I am wholly convinced, by small charges of ammunition, by the sound of mortar and most bravely carried away by one of the party. The quarters of the town where the shells had been directed were very well defined; and it was in these only that the front walls were erect, though damaged.

Within the houses mess and filth of animals, one of which was found, so much rubbish could have been amassed. In the Hotel de Ville in Peronne, a building spared because it was used as a hospital, each room, save only the cellars, and dug out below the cellars, was impassable for debris.

The general impression of desolation wrought by some bull-headed minor or vulture harpy was etched into the features of a more odious because more human and intelligent creature when the minor individual details of this general wreckage reached the imagination.

Here was a long mirror hung against the wall. It was shattered by means of a hammer still lying on the floor. Here was a cabinet with shallow shelves, each of which had been hacked by some blunt instrument. Here again was a Renaissance mantelpiece finely cut and designed in marble. It had been battered out of shape and pattern by the blunt side of an axe. The axe was not a brutal in the very rare places where apparently something had been spared.

For example, a certain number of books had been left in a fine library, but the greater number were thrown about the floor and wantonly torn to shreds. No books were left intact; no single table or chair or piece of crockery. Indeed, hardly anywhere could I find trace of furniture. I can only suppose that most of it was carried off and is probably in the hands of the Prussian furniture fakers, who have great German genius in their art. But it was not a burnt, how much carried off, is quite conjectural. In Peronne fires had been lit here and there, and a few houses were still smoking. In Baginne, which I only saw at night, the burning was more extensive. In the villages the fires were the biggest and most thorough, probably for the reason that the material was of less value. Nowhere do any whole houses exist. The churches are blown up by mines.

I have said nothing of acts of destruction that have any military object. War, as conducted by the Boche is a beast's game, and has bestial rules. The mining of all wells, except the one or two left for chemical treatment, is, I suppose, a military precaution like the shattering of the railway stations and the permanent way. Indeed, with regard to military precautions of this sort, my personal feeling was that by far the least thought should be given to the blocking of traffic. You could drive a motor at good speed along main roads seven or eight hours after the enemy had left them.

The mining and blocking seemed to my eyes rather casual and perfunctory, at any rate vastly inferior in thoroughness to the looting and the wanton excesses against property. The military mining and tree felling were done under orders. The stealing and breaking up of gardens and houses were done for pleasure and profit—con amore.

So it is that you can bicycle along country roads in the rear of the enemy and meet no resistance. Scores of obvious checks and barriers have been omitted. But in all the towns and in all the villages you may search for nothing but for any single example of slackness in the art, or perhaps science, of thieving and fouling of 1914, in the close neighborhood of Rheims, a French general—a soldier and a gentleman—if ever there was one—showed me in a little little shop how everything had been sifted till nothing worth more than twopence-halfpenny was left in the heap on the floor, and I walked through villages robbed of everything, every sheet, blanket, and bolster.

But the German has advanced since those days. He can now loot a large town, so that not a penny of a penny piece is left, and he can retreat over a country side without leaving a roof or a sauceman, or a fruit tree.

Babylon in British Hands

Union Jack Flies Over What Was Once Great Babylonian Empire

There are really two Babylons, one the Babylon of old, the other the Babylon of Nebuchadnezzar, says a writer in the Christian Guardian. The former is the little town of Hillah, with only a few hundred inhabitants and its buildings all of mud bricks, like Babylon of old. The ancient Babylon lies all around Hillah, and is practically a suburb of Bagdad. Before the war there were a dozen German scholars living in Babylon and pursuing research work for the German government at a cost of about $20,000 a year. But the members of the staff of this research party were all German officers, and their researches were not confined wholly to ancient Babylonian records and relics. A railway was projected to run from Berlin to Bagdad and one hundred miles of it ran through Bagdad to Samarra, and this is now in British hands. It is an interesting thing to note that Kut-el-Amara, also famous in this war, is on the edge of the ancient city of the Chaldees, which was Abraham's dwelling place when he heard the voice that called him to "go out, not knowing whither he went." And now over this section and over ancient Babylon flies the well-known Union Jack, and Britain's soldiers guard what was once the centre of the great Babylonian empire.

All Credit Is Canada's

The Evening Journal is in a position to make announcement of historic importance to its Canada concerning the recent victory at Vimy Ridge. Vimy Ridge was taken by Canadian infantry after splendid preparation by artillery that was entirely Canadian—every gun that took part in battering down the German position was Canadian, and what is of special interest to the Canadian is that the Canadian division, General E. W. B. Morrison of Ottawa, was in charge of the Canadian artillery.

Only one officer not Canadian participated and he was a staff officer, placed to communicate with British officers in linking up the action along the front with other divisions. Ottawa Evening Journal.

Fluddub—Why do you watch young Grotz so closely? Are you afraid he is going to slope with your daughter?

Hardup—No; I'm afraid he isn't.

"Bligun, is always lecturing on patriotism."

"Yes. Sometimes I think he is an alien enemy, and is trying to make patriotism unpopular."
